New History to Be Taken Up Old Ones Renewed.

THE HISTORY COMMITTEE

Will Oppose Fiske's History and May Ask Another to be Taken from the List. New Board Begins Duties Soon May Spread Over State.

wreat school book fight is soon to be new interest by the entrance of at least one new school history, written by no less a scholar than Professor Henry White, formerly of Washington and Lee University.

The History Committee of the Grand Camp of Virginia has determined already to oppose any attempt to put riske's history on the list. It is said hat the committee will ask that a hisory already on the list be taken off on the ground that it has many of the same boints of objection that Fiske's has.

The present Board of Education would not take up the matter of books, transmitting this responsibility and by no means pleasant duty of selecting them to the new board which begins its work ess than a month from now. The hew board will consist of the Governor, the Attorney-General and the Superin-lendent of Public Instruction, as now, Also President Lyon G. Tyler, of William and Mary; Professor Charles W. Kent, of the University of Virginia; Superin-lendent W. A. Bowles, of the Deaf and Dumb Hospital, Staunton, and a county had city superintendent, to be chosen by the other members upon their organiza-tion.

Just who these remaining two members for to be is a most important and interesting question. Among the most prominent country superlistendents in the State on account of the work they have done and are doing as is seen from the present condition of their schools is Superintendent Joynes, of Accomac. No man who attraded the recent superinchedents conference made a more favorable impression than he. The board will have a fine lot to pick from, however, and on one can accurately forecast who the will be.

Several city superintendents are at city superintendents are at gested as choices of the board. pince suggested as choices of the board. Among them are SuperIntendents Glass, of Lynchburg, and Doble, of Norfolk. Both men have made splendid successes of their schools, and are regarded as peers of any popular educators in the land. It is possible that Mr. Glass would not find time to attend to the duties, as he has so much work to do in connection with his summer normals, which Dr. Wallace Buttrick regards as the best in the South.

MAY SPREAD OVER STATE.
The fight of book companies may take one of two courses. It may all take place right in the meetings of the board or, it may go over the State, breaking out in the meetings of the county boards beganding on the action of the General Board. Should the board decide to put several histories, several readers, and so forth, on the list, the publishers of the books successful before the General Board will carry the contest to the county boards to get the specified adoption there. MAY SPREAD OVER STATE.

The public is particularly interested in the history and reader contest. The present histories in use in the State are Mrs. Lee's, Dr. J. William Jone's and Cooper, Estill and Lemon's, Interest in readers arises chiefly from the fact that a most Excellent series, the Jonhson's, is published in Richmond.

One of the most important witnesses that the prosecution will introduce, it is budderstood, will be a black horse. The prosecution expects to take the jury behind this animal to various cemeterles in the vicinity of Indianapolis and to show that it has become so accustomed to making the midnight journeys that it is acquainted in detail with the work expected of it, and, given the road, can proceed without direction to any of the remeterles to which it may lead.

This horse, it is said, was driven by Dr. Alexander and Cantrell, the "king of the ghouls," and was invariably used by them in visiting the cemeterles to phtain bodies.

During the evening refreshments were served in the basement of the hall, and around the board was gathered some of Diabonoid's most prominent. German-Richmond's most prominent German-American citizens, who made the evening most enjoyable with German songs and most enjoyable with German songs and speeches.

Two prizes to the best lady and gentleman dancers were offered, and the contest for the honor was a most interesting one. Five judges were selected and three waltzes were necessary to decide the contest. In the final waltz only three couples participated. The judges stood two for Mr. Marcus Estes and Miss Willie Hawkins, while the third held out for his favorite couple, but finally voted for Mr. Estes and Miss Hawkins, who were awarded a handsome umbrella and phattelaine bag, respectively. Noble Grand Arch Metzer presented the prizes.

LETTERS ON TOPICS OF THE DAY

A Colored Preacher's View.

To the Editor of The Times-Dispatch: Sir,—I am a constant reader of your paper, as I have been of The Times for many years. I am also a daily reader of soveral more papers of Virginia, and out of Virginia. I have watched with many years. I am also a daily reader of several more papers of Virginia, and out of Virginia. I have watched with keen interest the great drama that is being acted in this country with the negro as the center. More than once have I been tempted to enter the arena in defense of my people, but the thought that there were others more capable than I by reason of age and experience, has served to deter me. But the speech of Mr. Hayes and the great ado over it throughout the country in general and the South in particular has caused the temptation to return with such force that I cannot resist it; you will, therefore, permit me to occupy a small space in your paper that I may speak this once in behalf of the poor negro, of which I am one, and, first, I want to say that I have been a resident of this place all my life (thirty-nine years), and a plain preacher of the gospel of Christ, pasioring four country churches for flicen years, and am pleased to say that I enjoy the confidence of the leading white people of my section. It has everbeen my watchword to cultivate friendly relations between the races, realizing as I do that the negro has all to gain and nothing to lose by so doing. I have always thought that the South and especialnothing to lose by so doing. I have always thought that the South and especial nothing to lose by so doing. I have always thought that the South and especially Virginia was the best place for the negro. A place where the negro will be allowed a chance to solve the vexatious question, how to eke out a living.

I am no flatterer, but my opinion is that the white and the colored of Virginia are the best people in the world. I have no word of condemnation for Mr. Hayes, because of the reported intemperate speech in Washington since he has seen fit to deny it; the propositions advanced in said speech are preposterous in the extreme—amalgamation and reprisal. As to the first, I believe that there are as pure colored women in this country as there are any other color, one of which I am pleased to call my own. And the negro who thinks otherwise is unworthy to live. No one but a fool desires social equality between the races. The man, be he white or black, who advocates reprisal, ought to be banished.

"That nowhere in this country are the negroes better treated than they are in Virginia."
But The Times-Dispatch must know that But The Times-Dispatch must know that every great issue produces its extremists; for an instant, the negro question with Hayes on the one hand and Ben Tillman on the other. The great mass of negroes of our State no more stand sponsor for Hayes' reported speech than do the mass of white people of the South stand sponsor for Tillman's intemperate speech in the United States Senate when he said: "Yes, we shoot them (the neid: "Yes, we shoot them (the ne-we rob them and what are you

"The Implacable Dr. Jones. Editor The Times-Dispatch:

Sir I do not care to reply to your Sir.—I do not care to reply to your celitorial comment on my criticism of Mr. Charles Francis Adams' speech at the New York banquet. My contention was, and is, that while Mr. Adams had a perfect right to allude to General Lee's was, and is, that while Mr. Andals and a perfect right to allude to General Lee's order 'in Pennsylvania as illustrating his humanity, he had no right to present a garbed extract from that order, professing to give General Lee's very words, and yet leaving out important words and sentences in which he clearly arraigns "the barbarous outrages" of Pope, Mitroy and others or that ilk (Sheridan and Sherman had not yet begun their infamous cureers of pillages and destruction of private property), and orders his soldiers not to imitate them. You think this garbling of General Lee's order "was sensible and discreet and entirely fair;" I do not, and I am willing for the intelligent reader to judge between us. But I do desire to enter my vigorous protest against the epithet you apply to me when you call me "The Implacable Dr. Jones."

He Heard Hayes' Speech.

Hayes received a great ovation at the hands of the negroes, yet, as far as my observation went, the incendiary parts of the speech were not so well re-ceived nor so liberally applauded. Hayes cannot back down from his position, for cannot back down from his position, for his exact statements are set down in cold type. For the sake of his skin, he cannot reproduce anywhere in the South the speech he made here last Monday and speech he made here last Monday light. One portion of Hayes' speech was not fully reported. It was the reference to General Lee, whom he styled "the rebel Lee, who fought to keep me and you in slavery." Hayes deprecated any reconciliation on the part of the North and South, preferring the stirring times of reconstruction. He scouted the idea of a Lee statue in the Capitol here, and showered contempt on every one, North and South, who wished to see a perfect reconciliation of the two sections.

Fifth and Main Lot.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch:
Sir,—As one interested in the growth and prosperity of his native city, I ask space to make a suggestion regarding the lot at the corner of Fifth and Main Streets. Of course, it will be taken by those interested only for what it is worth, and if worth nothing will not be taken at all.

I have no interest whatever in the property above referred to, but I do have the erty above referred to, but I do have the utmost solicitude for the welfare of the beloved city of my birth.

beloved city of my birth.

A recent article in your valuable paper stated that no definite plans had been agreed upon as to what kind of building should be put there, nor would be until the directors of the company owning the property met. Therefore, I have thought that some outside expression of opinion on the subject might be worth something.

that some outside expression of opinion on the subject might be worth something.

Residing and doing business on upper Main Street, I find it often quite inconvenient to go down town to attend to my bank business, and in this I am not alone. Many of my neighbors for squares around have the same trouble, and for that reason alone quite a number of them keep no bank account at all. We all find it a great inconvenience, and many of the larger stores are taxed to eash checks, which they have sometimes to hold several days; and, as to gutting change, it is a thing well nigh ispossible. So I have thought that if one of the old established banks not now owning its own home would erect a handsome building such as is contemplated by the V-rginia State Insurance Company on the opposite corner they would make an admirable move. Not only would they hold their present husiness, but would greatly augment it by the addition of custom from the class above referred to.

The Christian Advocate Earnestly Com mends the Article of Mr. Light to the Oonsideration of All Methodists.

In the issue of the Christian Advocate, of this city, which will appear to-day, there will be published an article from the Rev. J. H. Light, of Lexington, Va., in which will be made the unqualified asserilen that the State institutions of learning are practically under the control of one denomination, and that certain other schools, advertised as non-secturian, are not really such, but are thereughly denominational in spirit and tradition and habit. Editorial comment by the Advocate will call attention to the article as a "very timely and suggestive communication," the facts in which "demand the most serious consideration of our people.

the article as a "very timely and suggestive communication," the facts in which "demand the most serious consideration of our people.

THE ARTICLE.

The tenor of the letter from Mr. Light is an appeal in behalf of Randolph-Macon College and for united effort to close with the offer of Mr. John P. Branch, of this city, who has announced his willingness to give $i$ for every $2$ collected elsewhere. It is to this institution, he says, that the Methodists must look; they cannot expect anything from the others. Thereafter Mr. Light proceeds to show why Methodists cannot expect anything for the other schools. Despite their statements to the contrary, they are "thoroughly denominational in spirit and tradition and habit." He cites Washington and Lee University at Lexington, which "advertises itself as a non-sectarian institution and makes capital out of that allegation, when the truth is that Randolph-Macon is no more Methodist than Washington and Lee University is Presbyterian." Moreover, "all the influences, active and passive, apparent and undefinable, are used to win every Methodist boy that sets foot in Lexington away from the faith and church of his fathers."

STATE INSTITUTIONS.

Concerning the State institutions, Mr. Light says in part: "But a fair and impartial view of the situation will make manifest that the State institutions are being run as denominational schools. But the facts can be easily verified, and the inductions from the facts are not hard to draw. Is it imaginable, for example, that the Episcopal Church would be without a single institution? The truth is, there is practically no such thing as a non-sectarian educational institution in the State institutions? The truth is, there is practically no such thing as a non-sectarian educational institution in the State institution? In the truth is, there is practically no such thing as a non-sectarian educational institution in the State institution? In the control of the State institutions? The small pony which wrought such havoc on North Ninth Street late Monday atternoon, together with the buggy and harness, was arrested by Patrolman Wiley, who, after waiting a solid hour for the owner to show up, drove the beast to the Second Police Station, where he has since been feeding at the expense of the city.

As was stated yesterday morning in The Times-Dispatch, a Mexican mustang, hooked to a light buggy, became frightened Monday afternoon, dashing madly down North Ninth Street towards Math, with the result that one cart and a heavy furniture wagon were upset.

The runaway was stopped in front of Rueger's, but the owner falled to materialize. Patrolman Wiley lay in wait for an hour, in the hope of discovering the identity of the man who dared violate the ordinances of the city by leaving his horse standing united.

Probably the appearance of the officer on the scene frightened the proud possessor of the beast, and he decided to hold off 'identifying and chalming, the property until the sontinent aroused by the wild runaway had subsided. He waited too long for the patrolman simply arrested the whole outfit.

Unless an owner shows up shortly the horse, buggy and harness may be sold at public outery for its feed and storage bill. However, this is improbable, as Officer Wiley says he is willing to a sear title to the property.
